Fitzsimmons receives Distinguished Administrator of the Year Award

by Karl Marx

The Alumni Memorial Chapel erupted in applause when Reverend Comrade Josef Sellinger announced that Comrade Jim Fitzsimmons had won the just created Distinguished Administrator of the Year Award. The standing ovation which followed lasted well over fifteen minutes.

As Comrade Fitzsimmons walked down the center aisle of the chapel to accept the award, enthusiastic spectators reached out with their hands in an attempt to touch the venerated administrator as he passed by.

After he finally succeeded in quieting the deliriously pleased crowd, Comrade Fitzsimmons thanked everyone at Loyola for their unwavering loyalty to both himself and the freshly adopted Marxist ideals of the college.

"This award represents a mandate of the people,"

Comrade Fitzsimmons said. "It belongs as much to the commune of Loyola as it does to me."

Reaction to Comrade Fitzsimmons' honor has been universally ecstatic. Reverend Comrade Sellinger commented, "Comrade Fitzsimmons is an exemplary party member. His work during the March Revolutions was essential in the establishment of a Marxist commune here at Loyola."

Comrade Batman, formerly known as Academic Vice-President Tom Scheye and Comrade Boy Wonder, formerly known as the Assistant to the Academic Vice-President, were found in the Andrew White Dining Hall sharing the same cup of coffee. "Comrade Fitzsimmons deserved the award," they said. "He's more devoted to communism at Loyola than any of us."

Comrade Josef Yanchik, also known as the Vice-President for Student Affairs, said, "Comrade Fitzsimmons really knows how to handle the students. In all the time he's been with us, I don't believe a single complaint has ever been made about anything he's done."

The students in fact, are happier than anyone that Comrade Fitzsimmons has been named Distinguished Administrator of the Year. Freshman Comrade Jai Obey commented, "After all he's done for me this past semester, I must say that Comrade Fitzsimmons is my favorite member of the administration. The help he has given me has changed my whole perspective on the Loyola commune."

Sophomore Comrade Jim Clownelly was equally praiseful. "Comrade Fitzsimmons is a brilliant man and a quintessential communist. My association with him in all capacities has been both an inspiration and an honor."

Comrade Fitzsimmons' achievements over the past year, which earned him the award, are outstanding by any standards. It was his idea to convert Loyola communism. In a series of meetings, beginning last August, with Reverend Comrade Sellinger, Comrade Fitzsimmons persuaded the President of Loyola to adopt a Marxist philosophy.

Reverend Comrade Sellinger gradually was convinced by Comrade Fitzsimmons' argument that if the college were under communist rule every student would be required to submit all of his worldly possessions to the Evermud Fund. Also, Comrade Fitzsimmons' contention that noisome student resistance to obviously meritorious policies could be completely eradicated by a Communist regime greatly encouraged Reverend Comrade Sellinger to establish Marxism here.

By the end of the fall semester, Reverend Comrade Sellinger was an avowed Marxist, and Comrade Fitzsimmons was placed in charge of converting the school. First he destroyed the only imperialist democratic institution on campus, the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E by ensuring that all candidates for office were Communist Party members and ran unopposed.

Comrade Fitzsimmons' latest accomplishment has been his institution of the Publiburo, of which he is chairman. Comrade Fitzsimmons has orchestrated nearly every aspect of the Communist conversion of Loyola, even those which the Publiburo will not allow us to discuss for security reasons.

Reverend Comrade Sellinger also announced that in future years, the new award's official name will be the Jim Fitzsimmons Distinguished Administrator of the Year Award, in honor of its first recipient.

Communist Publiburo takes over clubs

by Irv Machiavelli

The Reverend Comrade Josef A. Sellinger has announced that the five student media clubs and all 48 other student clubs will now be under direct authority of the Publiburo. As a committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the Publiburo controls all domestic and foreign policy and publicity pertaining to the college.

"We will hold full control over all stories printed in the Greyhound," said Comrade Jim Fitzsimmons, Publiburo chairman. "With Tass in charge of all information printed in the paper, soon the Greyhound will rival the great Pravda of our mother country."

Comrade Fitzsimmons, who was recently decorated as Distinguished Administrator of the Year, promised that no more will libelous stories of disappearing grade point averages and dissatisfied educational instructors be seen on the pages of the newspaper.

"The former editors failed to create the proper ambience on the campus," he said. "They were merely disturbed members of the working class."

Comrade Fitzsimmons added that the troublesome editors have been "taken care of."

The venerated comrade announced that plans are also being made for the campus radio station, WLCR.

"The noise, I mean music, was selected by students who were negatively influenced by the former Greyhound staff," he said. "WLCR's format will now follow the students' real listening needs and desires (see poll, p. 4). The station's staff concur with this decision."

The members of the five-man Publiburo team, in addition to the esteemed Comrade Fitzsimmons, will be Director Comrade of Resident Life Anne Westrick, Comrade Vice President of Student Affairs Josef Yanchik and Comrade Batman, formerly Comrade Academic Vice President Thomas Scheye with his sidekick Boy Wonder, formerly Comrade Assistant to the Academic Vice President Randy Donaldson.

The comrades said that the duties of the Publiburo are defined in Article 9, Paragraph 18 of the statute of the Communist Party.

lowest, 2. periodical calling to account of party organs by their own party organizations, 3. strict party discipline and submission of the minority to the majority and 4. absolute supremacy of all decisions by higher authorities on subordinate bodies and on all party members."

Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder explained that the duties of the Publiburo are based on these premises.

"Under the first significance, the Publiburo will have the right of hiring and firing each editor-in-chief, club president, section editor, staff members, club officers and members," they said. "Each club's main officer will have to account for his club's activities following their staging."

A periodic memo will be issued informing club officers of the majority opinion which they will abide by, with the full understanding that the Publiburo may have to insist on policies which are not wholly acceptable to students.

"Lastly, as the highest authority on campus policy and publicity, the Publiburo will hold absolute supremacy over all activities and members," said Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder.

Clownelly elected A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E president, forbids talent shows

by Paul Sarbanes

Comrade Jim Clownelly will be the new president of the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E, as decided in the mass elections held Wednesday. Comrade Clownelly ran an unopposed campaign along with his running mates Vice President for Academic Affairs Comrade Ted Miles and Vice President for Social Affairs Comrade Dora Bankins. The office of the vice president for student affairs comrade has been abolished since the Publiburo has taken all responsibility for student clubs. The Publiburo is chaired by Comrade Jim Fitzsimmons, recently named Distinguished Administrator of the Year. Comrade Fitzsimmons was commissariat of the elections and said that the Publiburo revised the election ordinances so that the candidates could run unopposed. "We require that all candidates for office in the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E hold a QPA of 1.9 or below," he said. "The three candidates elected are amply qualified for their respective positions."

Comrade President Clownelly said that he is very excited about his new position and has many plans for the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E. "First, I will issue a declaration forbidding the holding of talent shows," he said. "This administration simply cannot handle the responsibility of such a large undertaking." Comrade Clownelly said he is happiest with inheriting a decision of the former administration. "My predecessor, Comrade Bankins, very wisely reversed this body's stand on student involvement in merit pay," he said. "Now Comrade Batman [formerly Academic Vice President Tom Scheye] will be able to use evaluations to pay teachers, pay administrators, pay us and to put down for Kelly in the Reverend Sellinger's house." Comrade President Clownelly was pleased with the voter turnout. With 99.785 percent of the students voting, he and each running mate received 2494.625 votes.

SAGA aim to feed masses

by Mao Tse-Tung

Students who are wondering about the latest campus inconvenience – the narrowed walkway between the athletic field and the construction site – will soon get an answer to their question, "Ah geez, what now??" The latest project will reveal itself when lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers, radishes, carrots, rhubarb, bean sprouts, brussel sprouts, alfalfa and spanky sprouts, buckwheat, artichokes, cauliflower, and leeks start to sprout all over the soon to be renovated Curley Vegetable Garden, formerly the Curley Athletic Field. Comrade Sellinger and other members of the institution's administration have hired specialized agricultural technocrats to dig up the astro-turf and to cultivate the remaining soil. The veggie field is part of the Reverend Comrade Josef Sellinger's plan to increase the productivity of SAGA's (Soviets' Attempt to Gag Americans) bureaucracy. The products collected from the garden will be utilized only in the SAGA cafeteria as a community effort to feed the masses. Hordes of students, most of them athletic team members, have protested and picketed against the destruction of their turf. Sheer chaotic insanity ran rampant during this week's violent riot which broke out in front of Party leader Comrade Reverend Sellinger's house on Millbrook Road. Frenzied protestors consistently chanted, "SPORTS – NO SPROUTS" and "WE DON'T WANT TO

SAGA bureaucrat serving communal veggies to students

EAT OUR VEGETABLES!". The riot's violence peaked when several administrators' cars were overturned and fire hydrants were busted, blasting and inundating the delirious, massive mob. The road crew on Cold Spring Lane attempted to smother the heated display of temper by driving an armored steam roller down Millbrook Road followed by a guillotine styled road chopper vehicle. Although the steam roller operator was almost pulverized by lacrosse sticks and baseball bats, there were no fatalities among a few other minor injuries when the crowd was stopped by Security's tear gas bombs. "They (Comrade Sellinger and company) just push us around and deprive us of any outdoor activities," commented one angered lacrosse player. "I think that they're a bunch of insensible wise guys," bellowed George Karas, team captain of an intramural softball team. Curley, the garden project's proprietor, responded to students' complaints at an open forum held inside the Evergreen gymnasium. "Wise guys, eh?!" cried the high-pitched nasal voice. He then presented a display of enlarged photographs of other former astro-turfic gardens, hoping to change the angered students' minds. "Here, see this?..." he said as he flashed the photographs onto a large overhead projector. Afterwards, witnesses said that the crowd's anti-garden attitude was dissuaded little if any. Comrade Sellinger, as well as Comrade Curley, have received dozens of sabotage threats, all claiming to destroy any efforts made toward the garden's completion. When asked if he still planned to go ahead with the projected vegetable garden scheme, Comrade Curley replied, "Coint'nly!" Garden guardians will be posted 24 hours a day around the project in order to discourage vandals and to stop students from taking leeks in the garden.

Wayne Newton named Loyola's favorite musical artist

by John Lennon

The Publiburo has released the results of a campus-wide music poll testing the musical desires and needs of the students. According to Publiburo Chairman Dean of Student Life Comrade Jim Fitzsimmons, 2487 surveys were completed and tabulated.

An investigation is under way to discover the whereabouts of the other 13 polls.

"The number of responses was both overwhelming and expected," said Comrade Fitzsimmons. "Students really want a voice in the type of noise, I mean music that they listen to."

When asked to choose the type of music that they enjoyed most, 96 percent of the responses listed muzak/easy listening as their favorite. Four percent of the listeners preferred classical composition.

"This is quite a shift from the last music poll conducted," said Comrade Fitzsimmons. "Last time, the people chose classical music over easy listening 53 percent to 47 percent."

The poll asked students to list their musical preferences, their three favorite groups/artists, their three least favorite groups/artists, their three favorite songs, their three least favorite songs and their three favorite albums.

To assist students in making informed choices, Comrade Fitzsimmons said, the personal choices of the Publiburo members were distributed with each poll.

Leading the list of the favorite group/artist with 1596 votes was Wayne Newton, perennial star of Las Vegas stage and personal favorite of James Watt. Glen Campbell ran a distant second with 568 votes, while the King Family brought in 306 votes. The remaining 17 votes were write-ins split among Donny Osmond, John Denver and the monks of Mont St. Michel.

"In these days of the excesses of rock'n'roll, it was highly pleasing for me to see our students reveal such a high level of musical taste," said Comrade Fitzsimmons.

Among the least favorite groups, the Beatles headed the list with 1679 votes, the Police with 444 votes and Van Halen with 364 votes.

Coincidentally, the group

Van Halen also owned the campus's least favorite song. "Jump" lead the list with an overwhelming 1976 votes, followed by Nena's "99 Luftballons" with 376 votes and "Girls Just Want to Have Fun" with 137 votes.

The favorite song of the campus was "Somebody's Watching Me," drawing 1743 votes. The Mormon Tabernacle Choir's version of the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messiah" came in second with 497 votes and "Shanghai Breezes" held 247 votes.

The students' album choices showed a festive holiday spirit. "The King Family Christmas" roled in first with 1247 votes; the soundtrack from the John Denver and the Muppets Christmas special drew 786 votes; and the "Osmond Family Christmas" brought up the rear with 454 votes.

"These are what the students want to hear," said Comrade Fitzsimmons. "And this is the music that will be played."

Talent Show foiled by right-wingers and Harriss

by Nikita Kruschev

Despite valiant efforts of Comrade Todd Starkey and the Evergreen Players Socialist Party, Loyola students again have no showcase for their talent. That's right Comrades, Loyola's 1984 Talent Show is cancelled.

"We were so sure that we could get it together," said Comrade President Starkey, "but there were so many obstacles." Apparently the Players party experienced a wealth of right wing acts. That was their first problem. "They were so conservative," commented Comrade Tracey Postse-Tung, an audition judge, "we really had expected some more radical acts." "But we managed to fill the program," added Comrade Starkey, "it was the other things that really stopped us."

Party leader Margery Harriss, director of Socialist Events, caused problems for the Players when she scheduled a Yuri Andropov Creative Dying Lecture at the same time. This problem was solved by scheduling the show the next weekend, but the Players weren't out of the Gorky Park yet.

Yesterday, A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E president Comrade Jim Clownelly, declared that there would be no talent shows on campus. Comrade Clownelly also strongly emphasized his decision by saying "I'm serious about this thing, if our administration even catches another Comrade trying to have a talent show they will face either execution or exile in Siberia."

Merit pay position reversed, A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E disbands

by Nikolai Lenin

Monday the Administrative Council of the ASLC voted to changed its name, to cancel its leadership conference, to formalize the evaluation process for the merit pay system, and to disband.

The ASLC will from here on out be referred to as the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E, according to a 24-1 vote by the Council.

Comrade Nelson Carey, vice president for social affairs, said, "A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E gives the organization more of a group camaraderie. It's a real Mickey of an idea."

Comrade Ellen Talley, sophomore class representative said, "But I don't understand. Why can't we call it A-S-L-C/S-G-A/C-H-I-M-P? I think this is more appropriate, don't you?"

The Council also finalized plans to cancel their annual leadership conference scheduled for the weekend of April 13-15.

Comrade President Dora Bankins cited apathy in the present administration as the reasoning for the cancellation of the conference.

"Well, I don't know about the rest of you comrades, but I don't plan on going to the conference. That's the same weekend as the Scamps concert," she said.

The conference was cancelled in a 24-1 vote. Comrade Talley thought the conference might be beneficial to the Council.

Comrade Delegate at Large Steve Sireci said, "What's the use in having a leadership conference? Nobody ever hears about it. The Greyhound's, not invited."

Comrade Vice President for Academic Affairs Maura Lynch reported, "Things are moving right along with evaluations. The administration should have total control by next week."

Comrade Lynch told the Council about the great victory that she and Comrade Bankins won at the last College Council meeting.

"The College Council approved using out old evaluation form. It's great. We get our form and the administration gets their merit pay policy."

"Well, it's not exactly merit. It looks suspiciously like merit, according to Comrade Batman."

Comrade Bankins reported that she thought that reversing the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E's position was the best thing for her.

She said, "I'd rather be a quiet member of the Board of Trustees than an exiled ex-President of the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E. Why do I care how teacher pay raises are made?"

The change in the evaluation forms which will bring about a merit system led to the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E's final resolution uner Comrade Bankins' administration.

In its final vote of the day, the Council decided to disband itself. The new administration under Comrade President-elect Clownelly will hold office until May.

"Well, the way I look at it," Comrade Lynch said, "the academic affairs department will be non-existent by then."

What's wrong with Dora?

Why have A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E Comrade Vice president for Social Affairs Dora Bankins's eyes been glazed over for the past six months? Anyone with the answer to this question should see Comrade Jim Fitzsimmons at once. Study the photos carefully. Important clues are contained in each of them.

by Erich Hoenecker

Comrade Jerkov said he is determined to follow the instructions that Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder give him for securing accreditation

"The main difference between now and last year," they said, "is that now we have the KGB on our side."

Troy flies to Bermuda with Rugby budget

by Jane Fonda

Men's Rugby Club President Comrade Joe Troy used $2175 of that organization's remaining budget to travel to Bermuda for the recent spring break.

According to Rugby Club Comrade Steve Sireci, Comrade Troy withdrew the funds secretly two weeks before spring break.

"He knew everybody would be pissed," Comrade Sireci said.

Once he had the money, Comrade Sireci said, Comrade Troy arranged for a private plane to fly him to Bermuda on Saturday, March 17. All of this was done without the knowledge of any other comrade of the Rugby Club.

"We didn't find out what had happened until after we came back," Comrade Sireci said. "We tried to requisition money for some scrum caps and found out there wasn't any money left."

Comrade Troy has not returned to Loyola. According to Comrade Sireci, he was last seen in Jamaica, but that could not be confirmed.

"He'll never come back now," Comrade Sireci said. "Because if he does, I'll kill him."

In the meantime, the Men's Rugby Club is left without a president or a budget. The president problem will be solved easily; a comrade in the administration will choose Comrade Troy's successor.

The lack of a budget poses a more difficult problem. Several members have proposed various fundraising events. The most likely proposal to be used is a revised Rent-a-Rugger program. The Men's Rugby Club will affiliate themselves with a male escort service and split the profits. The rugby comrades may also peddle titillating photos of themselves.

"Basically, we're willing to do anything for money," Comrade Sireci said. He invited anyone with any ideas to contact him about it, so that "a deal could be worked out."

Other short-term money-making schemes include stealing equipment and uniforms away from opposing teams, then selling it back; mugging the opposing teams; mugging the Comrade Reverend Josef Sellinger; and mugging old ladies on MTA buses.

"They can't escape from a moving bus," Comrade Sireci explained.

The Rugby Club comrades have also considered renting out Cold Spring Lane as a dump to Baltimore city.

The steady captain of the Shark 8 Joe Troy, Rugby Club president

Comrade Joe Troy was often at loose ends before he absconded to Bermuda with the Rugby budget.

Follies to perform at Loyola Commune

by Eva Peron

The newly formed FRESHMAN TRANSFER FOLLIES (FIF) will be performing all next week on the third floor of Jenkins Forum, at the request of hundreds of adoring fans.

FIF is made up of the freshman and transfer students who were crazy enough to join the 1984 Loyola Women's Lacrosse team. The group performs a variety of skits and songs, celebrating the team's intensity and deep respect for the coaching staff.

The Follies, led by freshman sensation Comrade Janet Mariani singing and playing air guitar, were held over by popular demand, in Lafayette, Pennsylvania last week.

Audiences will cheer the tantalizing trio of Comrades Andy Holthaus, Anne Allen and Kathy Barten performing their version of "The Dating Game." Master of Ceremonies Comrade Lisa "Cheeks" Diccico will entertain the audience with her non-stop litany of comments and stories. Freshman Patty "Smurf" Murphy concludes the show with a spine-chilling impersonation of head coach McCloskey.

Other Follies members include Comrades Jackie "Too Tall" Buono, Nancy "Lips"

Harrington, Maura "Legs" Crowley, Theresa "Slowpoke" Small and Kay "Get 'em" Geary.

Tickets are $3 on sale now at Loyola's Athletic Office.

Kitchin's Biopolitics: Has he gone too far?

by Ho Chi Minh

Within the confines of Beatty Hall, Comrade William Kitchin administers his political doctrine of biopolitics to an engrossed company of students. The concept of biopolitics entails the study of biological motivations for political behavior. With a model of the human skull on his desk before the students, he points towards the frontal lobe area of the brain and claims in his southern dialect, "The behaviah of homosapiens is derahved from the biological processes of the brain."

Comrade Kitchin's doctrine may appear slightly far fetched to us Westerners, yet the class has attracted packs of political science students not only from Loyola but also

Political science faculty has yet to reveal the most intriguing facts from the unexplored depths of the mind.

from Notre Dame, Towson State, Johns Hopkins, Princeton, Harvard, and Oxford.

His intellectual peers applauded his brilliant character and dedication to a subject matter so complex and innovative. However, Loyola administrators are suspicious of this charismatic figure who is originally from southern Moscow. Academic Dean Frank McGuire said that he suspects Comrade Kitchin is instruction young KGB spies under the innocent, respectable guise of a biopolitics class.

"Well, you have to consider the evidence that we have against this, this neo-Marxist," Comrade McGuire claimed. "He's got those students scared to death—that big political bully. Each student has to give a mandatory 'oral report' at least once during the semester. Huh, oral reports my foot! Those poor kids are giving their quota testimonies. He's brainwashing those kids with Communism."

Students in the class told Greyhound reporters that Comrade Kitchin is not a Communist leader and that they are not KGB spies.

"He's just a totally fascinating professor—totally mesmerizing," claimed one catatonic biopolitics student. Another student expressed a slightly varied opinion of Comrade Kitchin. "He kinda scares me," said Greyhound Features Editor and political science major Comrade Susan Winchurch. "You know when he's plotting to intimidate you when he gets this funny smirk on his face and his eyes sort of squint, as if their laughing at you."

Uniforms issued, to students' dismay

by Marshall Tito

In an unprecedented move, the Administration has announced that starting next semester, students will be required to wear uniforms. College officials cited sloppy and unconventional dress styles of students as the motivation for their decision.

According to Comrade Batman, formerly Academic Vice-President Thomas Scheye, and his sidekick, Comrade Boy Wonder, formerly Randy Donaldson, Assistant to the Academic Vice-President, student styles of dress have "just gotten completely out of hand."

"We were walking across campus the other day, and we were appalled at what we saw," they said. "Pink, green, blue! Jeans, raggy, torn jeans! Funny rubber shoes! Why, it was almost as if the students were making an attempt to express their individuality. We were so shaken by what we saw that we had to take the afternoon off so we could go to Hutzler's and buy brand new gray flannel capes and masks just to steady our nerves."

Student reaction to the proposal has been mixed. Although few students are aware of the proposal, some have already expressed opinions.

"Now what am I supposed to do?" shouted Greyhound assistant features deaditor Comrade Tina Carignano. "I just bought stock in L.L.Beane, Jos. A. Banks, and Finklestein's. Why, with this stupid uniform code, I'll never get a chance to wear my 59 new Dean sweaters!"

Some students have expressed the fear that forcing students to wear identical clothing will have the effect of robbing them of a valuable means of expressing themselves.

"It's absolutely ridiculous," commented one student, who was wearing a red sweater, white turtleneck, khaki pants, and docksiders. "Students should never dress identically. We're adults now, after all, and this new code will deprive us of an important way to show that we are individuals."

Her companion, who wore a red sweater, yellow turtleneck, khaki pants and docksiders, agreed. "It's like totally beat," she stated.

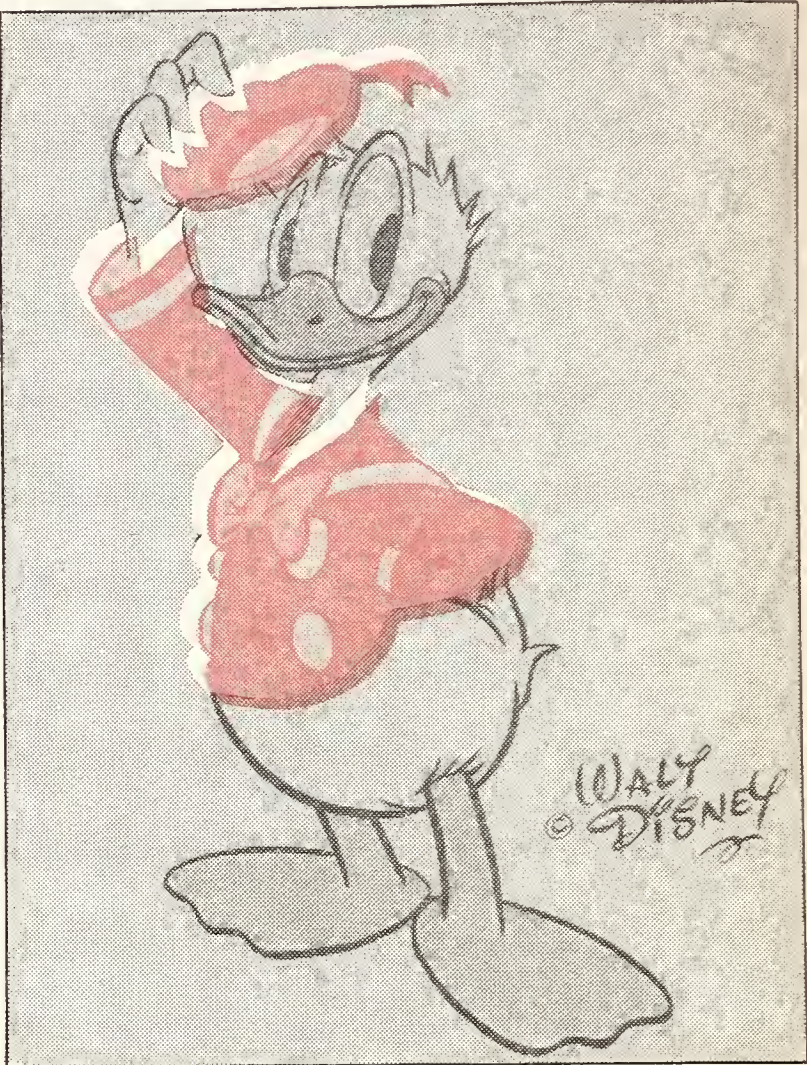

School officials have expressed the idea that student fears about loss of individualism are unfounded. One official in the Records Office, who asked not to be identified, said that the change in student attire will not affect her office's policy toward students.

"Of course nothing can change the perspective we now have on the students," the official stated. "We now, and will always, regard the student body as nothing but a bunch of numbers in the computer."

Apparently, some disagreement has erupted regarding the style of the student uniforms. Several altercations between faculty and administration members have been overheard. In one such confrontation, a faculty member was heard protesting, "No! Absolutely not! We will not have the girls in black lace teddies!"

Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder expressed the hope that the uniform dilemma can be solved in time for next year's students to be fitted. "Hopefully, we will be able to find a supplier and a style that suits us all," they said. "With luck, we should have this thing ironed out by May or June." They declined to comment on the merit of any specific designs being considered but said that one of the strongest contenders was of a "nautical" nature. "We like that one," they said. "It's kind of cute."

Cockroach patrol welcomes freshmen, helps SAGA

by Nikolai Lenin

Most freshmen comrades coming to Loyola will find some interesting characters greeting them at every step along the way. No, these characters are not members of the Disorientation Staff at Loyola. They have a QPA (Quality Prevalence Average) over 1.9. They are the cockroach patrol of Loyola.

Yes, the cockroach patrol is alive and breeding t Loyola. Their membership varies, especially during extermination periods, from several thousand to one million.

The Reverend Comrade Josef Sellinger said, "They've been here as long as Loyola has. They provide wonderful security for the campus. Who would ever invade a country patrolled by roaches?"

These roaches are unofficially part of the Disorientation Staff, working mainly as workers for SAGA, Soviets Attempt to Gag America. They serve meals and inspect food quality for incoming freshmen. When not working for the Disorientation Staff, the roaches work full-time for SAGA, busing cafeteria trays, cleaning dishes, and helping prepare food.

SAGA Comrade Ron Stagenhorst appreciates the roach patrol.

"They're really great. We don't have to pay them and they do a lot of work for scraps, unlike the rest of the employees who demand respect here."

The comrade students don't appreciate having roaches work for them, but since when do these comrades have a say in who works for them, how much they get paid and in what they eat?"

The roach patrol is not only active in SAGA, but also in the standing committees of the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E. They hold positions on the Food Service Committee, making suggestions on improving food quality; on the Andrew White Board; and on the Rat Board.

Comrade Treasurer Keith Fitch, a member of the Rat Board, said, "The roaches aren't very helpful to the board. They drink, get drunk and disrupt our meetings. It's no wonder the Rat has to close to dry out its regular customers."

Roaches have been actively involved in coordination of study breaks and in helping the RA's. The clean up after breaks and taste the donuts for staleness.

To help the RA's, the Resident Life Office has installed platoons of roaches in each apartment and dorm complex.

Comrade Director of Resident Life Anne Westrick said, "I thought it was a great idea for comrade students to room with these roaches, especially at Winniewood."

Comrade Westrick said that she hoped comrade students would be able to get along with the resident roaches. Good neighbor policies should be followed, she stressed.

"Students should treat these roaches as their best friends and just like pets. Roach-walking is only permitted off-campus. No students are allowed to have pets."

The only thing that bothers me is that the roach family living with me in Winniewood is messy. They never clean the kitchen after they eat dinner."

Furry friends to join Political Science faculty

by Leonid I. Breznhev

For years, Loyola's Political Science Department has consisted of three professors, but soon, according to department chairman Comrade William Kitchin, Political Science will finally start to expand. Comrade Kitchin recently announced the addition to the department of two new instructors, Comrades Huggy and Mittens, who will join the faculty next semester.

"It's really about time the department started enlarging," commented Kitchin. "For years, Loyola students have been limited to the three main categories of pre-law courses, international politics with a heavy concentration on Europe, and United States government." Kitchin said that the effort in recent months has been directed toward broadening the Political Science major's possibilities. (His own course in Bio-Politics, a venture into an area unknown to most students, the brain, is an example of that trend.)

The new additions to the Loyola faculty are both well-qualified to teach here, said Comrade Kitchin. (Huggy is a mixed breed with traces of Tibetan terrier, and Mittens is a purebred Beagle.) Comrade Huggy holds an undergraduate degree from Harvard University, and received her doctorate in Latin American Politics at Oxford.

"She has held some pretty important jobs in the past," remarked Kitchin. "She went down to Central America with Henry Kissinger and his commission and was instrumental in helping the commission to come to its decision." In addition, said Kitchin, Comrade Huggy has served on several

Comrade Mittens, the beagle, is also a seasoned veteran of the political scene. At the Johns Hopkins University, Comrade Mittens received her undergraduate degree in Political Science and her doctorate in Asian Political Culture. She spent three years in China, investigating party politics regarding table scraps. "Hopefully, Comrade Mittens will uphold the standards of the party, based on her experiences in the People's Republic," said Comrade Kitchin.

What courses will materialize next semester as the result of these two new faces? Well, although no definite plans have been laid out, both professors have presented outlines for some potential ideas. Comrade Huggy, for instance, is planning to teach at least one course on Argentina, and intends to concentrate heavily on the political impact of that country's beef industry.

Comrade Mittens is planning to sponsor a January term trip to India. "I especially want the students to see Calcutta," she barked. "The way they treat those cows in India is really incredible. What a waste of good hamburger!"

Comrade Kitchin said he has no doubts about the relationship between Comrades Huggy and Mittens and the rest of the Evergreen community: "I think we'll get along just fine! Why, the other day, I was having a little trouble with my computer. Comrade Huggy came along, put her little paws on the keyboard and had the thing going before I had time to get another cup of tea."

Reportedly, the four-footed faculty members have been striking up friendships all over campus. Comrade Huggy was recently seen romping on the library lawn with Comrade Reverend Sellinger's faithful sidekick, Comrade Kelly. And Comrade Mittens was seen at lunch the other day, discussing the state of world affairs with Comrade Hans Mair of the Political Science Department. "The little tyke really knows her stuff," said Comrade Mair.

Comrade Kitchin ex pressed the hope that the new faces will enable the Loyola Political Science Department to explore some previously neglected areas. With their South American and Asian experiences, the new instructors may open up totally new horizons. Says Comrade Kitchin, "I'm looking forward to some courses in Nicaraguan politics, too!" Comrades Wolfe and Mair, of the Political Science Department, added that their appetites have been whetted for Cuban and Salvadoran politics as well. "It's gonna be a real blast!" they said, enthusiastically.

Summer Soviet sub duty to be required in 1985

by Wocjek Jaruzelski

Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder, formerly known as Academic Vice President Tom Scheye and Assistant to the Academic Vice President Randy Donaldson, have announced that beginning in May 1984, all students will be required to serve an annual three-month tour of duty in the Soviet Union's submarine navy. The tour of duty will begin on May 21 and end on August 21 every year.

"We want Loyola comrades to learn a sense of duty," Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder explained. "We think that three months of service on a Russian nuclear submarine will teach Loyola comrades some essential aspects of loyalty to the Party."

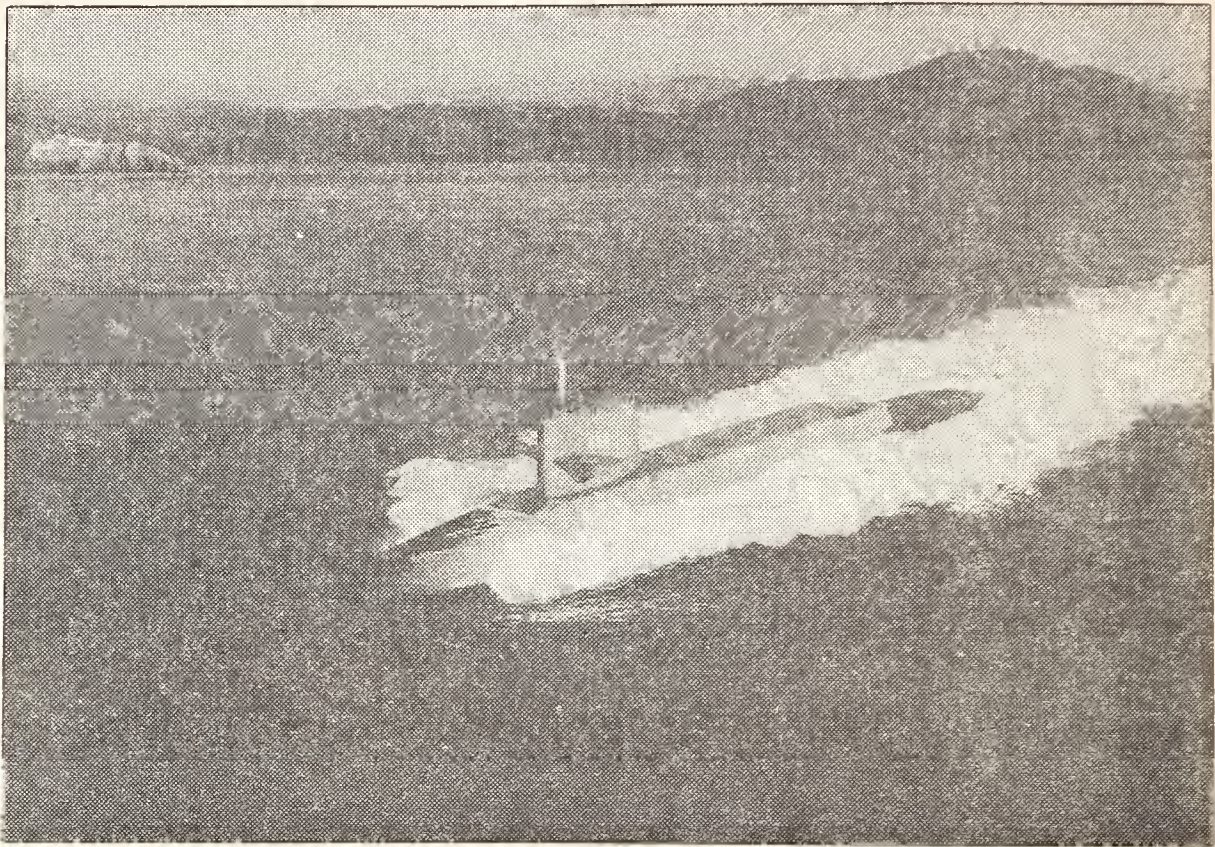

"Life is not easy on a nuclear submarine," they continued. "You rarely see the light of day because you are submerged 90 percent of the time. You barely have enough room to move. You have to put up with a couple dozen other comrades who may smell bad. A comrade's bravery and dedication to Party ideals is severely tested under these conditions, and we think that is a positive thing."

While the comrades serve on the subs, they will be trained in how to load, arm and fire nuclear missiles and torpedoes, how to maneuver a sub without beaching it in hostile territory or ramming it into an enemy's aircraft carrier and how to drink two liters of vodka without passing out.

"The skills acquired through this experience will prove invaluable in later life," Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder said. "When the KGB forces - we mean when the comrades graduate and freely choose a career in the Soviet navy, they will be glad for the head start which Loyola has given them."

The submarine service program is part of a cooperative program between the Loyola Commune and the Soviet Union. In exchange for a free monthly shipment of new slogans, five-year merit pay plans and special "Communists do it with MIG-23s" bumper stickers, Loyola provides about 2000 able-bodied students for the Soviet nuclear submarine force for the summer.

The rubles the students earn will be transferred to the Evermud Fund's Swiss bank accounts. These funds will in turn be used to pay for official state dinners for visiting dignitaries from the Marxist world, like Comrade Konstantin Chernenko, chairman of the Soviet branch of the Communist Party. In place of money, the students will be given one credit per summer spent in the Soviet navy. Since only four credits fulfill the requirement, students will either have to serve the summer before they come to Loyola or the summer after they graduate.

DECEPTION!

Administration reveals real purpose of construction

by Nikita Kruschev

According to a confidential Greyhound source, Loyola officials have been keeping one of the biggest secrets in the history of the Evermud campus. What has been masquerading as the unfinished DeChiaro College Center is really the beginning of a maximum security penal facility—the DeChiaro Student Detention Center.

"It's all a sham!" admitted Comrade Batman (formerly Academic Vice President Tom Scheye) and his trusty sidekick Comrade Boy Wonder (formerly Assistant Academic Vice President Randy Donaldson). "We decided a long time ago that we needed a more effective method of dealing with student's subversive activities. There's been entirely too much of it; loud, obscene music in the cafeteria, offensive publications...especially those damned April Fool's issues of The Greyhound."

Comrades Batman and

Boy Wonder admitted that the Detention Center is just one aspect of a plan to crack down on students—a plan which includes student uniforms, force-feeding of vegetables to students and communal labor in the new Curley Vegetable Garden. These measures are all parts of Reverend Comrade Sellinger's Five-Year Plan, a scheme to confine, rather than expand, the Evermud campus.

The facility will be used to confine a number of subversive organizations, among them, The Greyhound, WLCR, the Rugby Club, the Young Republicans, the Young Democrats and the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E. These organizations will be converted into communal agencies. Their functions will be to provide services which will be designed to benefit the masses. The activities of the Rugby Club, for instance, will be confined to making faculty license plates.

"The Young Democrats and Republicans will be in charge of stamping grapes and raising grain to provide beverages for the college administration, and The Greyhound and WLCR will be put to work disseminating official college propaganda, I mean news," reported Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder. "We haven't yet decided what to do with the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E. Maybe they can just scrub floors."

The day-to-day regimen in the Detention Center will be severe, according to Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder. Student dissidents will be subjected to excruciating, nerve-frazzling physical and psychological punishments. The Athletic Department will be equipped with a rack and stockades for the more insubordinate cases.

Legal Brief – Law Page 101AQ9 Joe McCarthy A.K.A. AND THE WALL IN MCAULEY CAME TUMBLING DOWN FACTS:

On the fateful night commonly referred to as Senior 100's, rebellious hooligans allegedly hell-bent on wild, wanton, willful and reckless behavior did assail a portion of the McAuley Courtyard, leaving heinous destruction in their wake.

More specifically set forth, herein, a four-foot brick accompanying the southeastern most corner of McAuley apartments was viciously knocked down, strewn hundreds of bricks about the immediate environs of said wall.

INVESTIGATION:

Shortly after dawn the following day, Chief Investigator Comrade Jim Fitzsimmons, whose apt professionalism will be more fully set forth at a later date, happened upon the scene of the alleged incident with two underlings, Comrades Dave Glenn and Sean Mann. In absence of an expert witness to assess the damage, Comrade Fitzsimmons, et al, unwittingly concluded that there must have been, contemporaneous with the alleged incident, an eyewitness to the perpetration of said incident.

The weeks following the investigation produced no witnesses despite valiant efforts on the part of Comrade Fitzsimmons via his 24-hour ad hoc hotline (323-BRIK).

Unnamed sources implicated participation of a party of four alleged students who lived at the time of the said incident, and do now currently reside at the property in the closest vicinity of said wall. Upon interrogation, however, Comrade Fitzsimmons found no evidence to link said residents with said incident, although said residents miserably failed to provide alibis as to their whereabouts on said fateful night.

PROCEDURE:

In order to conform with the norms of judicial procedure, Comrade Fitzsimmons brought said four residents, accompanied by their defense counsel, the Reverend Comrade Donahoe, before the investigator's twin brother, Judge Comrade Walter "Wapner" Fitzsimmons. At the hearing, Judge Comrade W.W. Fitzsimmons dismissed what he considered to be "an uproarious miscarriage of justice."

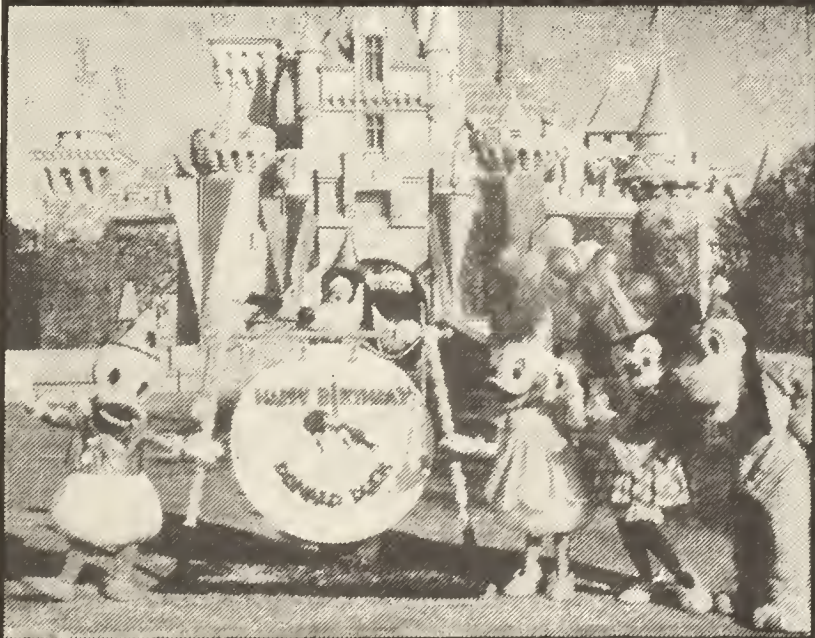

WITNESSES:

Still none. Comrade Cailin Quinn please call 323-BRIK as soon as possible.

OUTCOME:

A professional contractor was hired to replace said hundred bricks. All charges have been dropped. Cost for repairs – still in ongoing discovery.

It's all a sham!

Keith Richard to begin autobiography, Boy George marries self

by Karl Mad Dog Marx

Juicy rock and roll gossip never seems to find its way into the ears of Loyola students. Exciting things do happen in the real world, you know. Next time you're at a party trying to impress someone, you can spout off some of this fascinating trivia.

Keith Richard, the world's most famous burn-out, has announced that he is writing an auto-biography entitled Fast Times of Richard's High. It will focus on the ups and downs of his career as a member of The Rolling Stones. Richard is enthusiastic about the book's completion and says "...um...ow do you spell Keith?"

Weird Al Yanchovik ("Eat It" and "I Love Rocky Road") is in the process of recording his next parody. Yanchovik's version of Van Halen's song is called "Hump."

Jim Morrison and Jimi Hendrix have collaborated to form a new band called "The Ungrateful Dead" soon to be touring the United States. Also joining the band will be Keith Moon on drums and John Lennon on bass.

Philadelphia's Robert Hazard ("Escalator of Life") is under pressure from his manager to change his name. Also manager of Duran Duran and Bow Wow Wow, Spielman insists on the name Robert Hazard Hazard.

David Lee Roth has recently signed a contract to star in the latest production of a Tarzan film called "Van Tarzan." Roth's conditions for agreeing to take the part were that all movie theatres must sell only reserved seats, and no brown M&M's are to be sold at the concession stands.

A very secretive rock and roll wedding took place sometime last week. The media were not informed of the event beforehand, but the rumours have been confirmed. Boy George has married himself.

Michael Jackson will soon be filming commercials endorsing a new line of feminine protection called "Brooke Shields."

Brian Setzer of the Stray Cats has announced his engagement to a girl named Alka. "Our first born," says Alka, "will be named Bromo."

Duran Duran will soon be releasing a follow-up to "New Moon on Monday". The song is called "Blue Moon on Monday" and will be produced by an elderly alcoholic negro named Turkle.

Fences teach discipline, mental exercise

by Ho Chi Minh

As part of the project for the new DeChiaro Gulag Prison, corralling fences have been set up across campus as walkways.

The fences are as wide apart as five feet and as narrow as six inches. Students must use the walkways, since the top of the fences will be electrified to prevent climbing.

"We need the fences as a physical symbol of the guidance we extend to the students of Loyola Commune," said Comrade Dean of Student Life Jim Fitzsimmons.

Fences are set to show the way from McAuley, Ahern and the dorms to the student center. From there the paths branch to the academic buildings on campus and to Curley Field.

"Forcing the students to walk through the walkways of Curley surrounded by the lovely vegetables grown there," said Comrade Fitzsimmons, "will subconsciously convince them of the importance of eating their vegetables."

The paths weave in and out of the rows of vegetables to form a maze in the garden. Comrade Fitzsimmons commented that the maze will provide stimulating mental exercises for the students.

Comrade students will derive nutrition and sharp minds from the new six-inch walkways.

Patterson to explore North Pole

by Friedrich Engels

Comrade Webster Patterson, of Loyola's Theology Faculty, has been conducting study tours to the Middle East for years. But this year, Comrade Patterson is opting for an innovative change. "We're going to the North Pole this year, in search of Comrade Santa Claus," Patterson declared recently.

When asked why he has opted for this unusual itinerary, Comrade Patterson explained, "I'm just plain sick of the Middle East! Too many damn Fascists over there! Besides, I've seen it all. I know every grain of sand in the desert, and I'm on a first name basis with every cobra."

Comrade Patterson thinks that since he looks like Santa, they'll hit it off.

Comrade Patterson explained that Comrade Santa, in his "adorable red suit," and Rudolph, with his glowing red nose, are more in keeping with the spirit of the party than "those capitalist oil wells and all those arabs."

Comrade Patterson has already assembled an impressive group for the tours, including Comrade Reverend Josef Sellinger, who reported that he is "really psyched" for the trip. "I've always wanted to meet Comrade Santy!", cried Comrade Sellinger, jumping up and down.

Comrades William Kitchin, Hans Mair, and Donald Worlfe of the Political Science Department are all planning to accompany Comrade Patterson in his search for the great red elf. All three were recently spotted in Sunny's Surplus, bargain-hunting for parkas and heavy winter socks. Comrade Wolfe was reportedly upset that the store was out of red socks in his size. Comrade Mair had to pacify his colleague by taking him to a nearby drug store to buy him some Red Hot Dollars.

All over campus, comrades are buzzing with the news. Several faculty members and students have expressed the desire to accompany Comrade Patterson. Comrade Guroian, of the Theology Department, said that he wanted to meet Comrade Santa in person. "I want to ask him for a new red bow-tie," Comrade Guroian said, excitedly.

Comrade Patterson said that plans for this study tour are going smoothly. He has already arranged with Comrade Jane Witowski, of the Public Propaganda Office, for one million press releases to be distributed from Baltimore to Moscow.

"As long as publicity goes smoothly," said Comrade Patterson, "there should be no problems." With luck, comrades from East to West will soon be taking off to the land of ice, snow and elves for an adventure few will forget.

Crews install listening devices in all residence halls

by Josef Stalin

Special work crews have begun placing electronic surveillance devices, commonly known as bugs, in all of Loyola Commune's dorm rooms and apartments.

Comrade Jim Fitzsimmons, also known as the dean of student life, explained that Loyola's status as a Marxist institution has made the surveillance devices a necessity.

"Our comrades in the Soviet Union and elsewhere have proven that constant surveillance makes people far more cooperative," he said.

Some students have objected to the listening devices, which broadcast to unmarked vans parked nearby. The vans carry sophisticated recording equipment.

"I'm not too sure I want every sound I make in my apartment heard by strangers, and even worse, recorded for other strangers to hear," a sophomore comrade Charleston resident, who wished to remain anonymous, said. "I'll feel funny about doing certain things with certain people."

Comrade Fitzsimmons discounted student reservations about the devices.

"There's nothing to worry about," he said. "All Loyola students are loyal members of the Communist Party. Nothing they say or do should cause any action to be taken against them as long as they stay within the guidelines of proper party behavior."

The devices are being installed not to harm the students, Comrade Fitzsimmons contends, but to protect them.

"When we hear a corruptive influence in a student's apartment, like a broadcast of the capitalist game show The Price Is Right," Comrade Fitzsimmons explained, "we can

A member of a prison work crew on loan to Loyola trashes an apartment as he installs covert surveillance devices.

take the corrective action immediately to protect the student adequately."

Such action could include the ax-smashing of the guilty television, but in special circumstances, the student will be persuaded to change the channel to a broadcast of The Teachings of Karl Marx on PBS.

"Eventually," Fitzsimmons said, "when we install cable on the campus, only one official party channel will be available to aid students in avoiding detrimental ideological influences."

While the surveillance devices are being installed, Comrade Fitzsimmons asks students to be cooperative.

"The work crews are on loan from the Maryland State Penitentiary, and they haven't had much training," he said. "Don't panic if they remove an entire wall or two during the installation process. Physical Plant will be around to fix it in a jiffy."

Comrade Fitzsimmons also reminds everyone that their first duty is to the Communist Party and that small inconveniences such as those incurred during the installation of the devices are the least we can do to assist and support party goals and ideals.

Konstantin Chernenko

Loyola welcomed to Soviet sphere of influence

You can't imagine the pleasure I take in addressing the members of the commune of Loyola from here in the Kremlin. Although this is only a written message I feel a personal bond with each and every one of you. I wish to express my congratulations to the Reverend Comrade Josef Sellinger for choosing communism for Loyola, and our Comrade mole Jim Fitzsimmons in bringing about that choice.

Now that Loyola is a satellite of the Soviet Union, things will be different. There will be no more unemployment at Loyola. Every student will work for the Soviet Union, spying, sabotaging or just stuffing envelopes to encourage the worldwide dominance of communism.

There will be no more nuclear proliferation at Loyola. Reverend Comrade Sellinger has agreed to remove all of his land-based ICBM's from underneath the astro-turf field in favor of a vegetable garden.

There will be no more crime at Loyola. Anyone speaking out against the ideals of the Communist Party will enjoy a fair trial and be promptly executed. Thieves, rapists and murderers will be exported to Libya for profit, where there is a high demand for such people.

I sincerely hope that Loyola will become a place where Marxist ideals can thrive, unhindered by such historical aberrates as a free press, democratic voting and independent thinking. Loyola will be the model of a brave new society, unafraid to harass and intimidate its own citizens into complete submission - always for their own good, of course.

Letters to the Editor

Astro-turf fuels SAGA's kitchens

This must be said. The A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E's new proposal to house farm animals on campus is preposterous, hazardous, and not good.

Take the first step of the proposal. This allow hogs to lodge in the surrounding mud of the construction site. Certainly, this will not enhance Loyola's reputation as a fine institution. Grunts, not grades will be the imprints left on visiting dignitaries' minds. To suggest that SAGA will profit from this extra pork and benefit the student body is also ridiculous. The A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E must know that feeding these porcine individuals could cost a cent or two. Or perhaps this is the real reason behind the tuition increase?

Another aspect of the rural proposal deals with the closing of the ratscellar. The A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E believes that since the Rat tables are ruined with "Go Wild" etchings, the entire place should be devoted to chickens and turkeys. How glorious it will be to read Macbeth while being lullabied by clucks. As if the Student Center was not loud enough with Echo and the Bun-nymen. This housing of fowl should at least have been voted upon by the student body. Why were the turkey and chicken chosen at random? Personally, I'd like to see a nice Ring-Necked Pheasant there.

The A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E's final recommendation is the donation of the soccer field to cattle. Surely even the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E must see this as the mark of irresponsible student government. I don't believe cows like to eat astro-terf. Yet the poor things will be duped into believing that it will be grass. Oh what cruelty! Imagine the complications for the athletic teams if a calf was born.

I firmly believe that the A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E is in error with this plan. But then, that is the aristocracy at Loyola College.

broken, the youngsters will continue to be more outgoing, particularly in school. No longer will they be intimidated by the teacher's wrath, since their giddy numbness will make any punishment seem minimal. This will relieve tension in the classroom, resulting in a more relaxed learning atmosphere. No child will worry about looking foolish in front of his classmates, as he will constantly be looking foolish. The only competition existing between students will be who can chug a faster beer at lunch time. The pressures of homework, tests, and reports will all be giggled away as Junior pours himself another drink.

The life of a seven-year-old is so regimented, the child's individuality is suppressed by his parents. Heavy consumption of alcohol would encourage the tykes to express themselves more readily, whether this be through throwing-up on themselves to display their disdain for the moralistic ritual of wearing clothes; or, by belching loudly at dinner to protest the injustice of world hunger. No longer would the children of the world be silenced; rather, they would demand their rights just as loudly and obnoxiously as drunken adults do. Surely, slurred words are better than no words from the mouths of babes.

The Maryland State Legislature has recently passed a bill which raised the legal drinking age to twenty-one. Proponents of the bill insisted that this was necessary in order to decrease the rate of drunk driving accidents, as well as to discourage underage drinking. My experiences with the drinking and the drunk have led me to an opposite conclusion. The drinking age of 18 is much too high, and I believe that a more suitable age would be seven. I have three arguments to support this conclusion: alcohol will provide youths a means for casting off inhibitions; drinking will help the pre-teen overcome the pressures of grammar school; and water-ing youngsters drink will pro-

Obituaries**

The editor-in-chief and news editor of the Greyhound, David Zeiler and Linda J. Hallmen were killed in a car crash on Route 140 as they attempted to return to Loyola with their April Fool's issue.

Their car, named Will, was run off the highway but what one witness described as an exact replica of the Batmobile as both vehicles were traveling in excess of 70 miles an hour. The Greyhound laden automobile smashed through a guardrail and slammed into a tree. Zeiler and Hallmen died instantly.

The only other clue to the Greyhound's deaths was a scrawled note written on Pravda letterhead bearing the message "Merit pay - never again!" Police have no idea what the message means, or what the significance of the Batmobile is.

Greyhound features editor, Comrade Susan Winchurch, was the victim of an unusual accident which occurred late yesterday. Winchurch was touring the Noxell cosmetics plant in Cockeysville as part of the research for a features piece titled "Jesuits and Makeup," when she fell into a vat of bubbling eye-makeup remover and apparently drowned when the weight of her mascara carried her to the bottom.

Greyhound staffwriter Erich Hoenecker was touring the plant with Winchurch, and said that the possibility of foul play should not be discounted. "I saw a short, dark-haired man come up behind her and push her in," Hoenecker said. "He smoked a pipe and answered to the name of Tom."

Winchurch was stalwart to the end, Hoenecker added. "But she was really upset about her makeup being ruined," he said.

Suddenly, on Thursday, March 29th, Assistant Features Editor, Comrade Tina Carignano, was eaten alive by frenzied alligators while sailing on Lake Sellinger. Loyola Sailing Club President, Comrade Joan Barry, who witnessed the fatal incident, said that Carignano was dressed obnoxiously in kelly green and hot pink. "I was in the cabin fixing my hair when all at once I heard Tina up on deck saying, 'Joan, look at all of the cute Izods in the water! I just have to have one!' I tried to pull her back over the side of the boat but it was too late. It was just awful."

Carignano, whose main ambitions in life were to become a filthy rich lawyer, marry into money and own stock in L.L.Bean, will be eulogized in a memorial service to be held in the Loyola Chapel some time next week.

Greyhound Photography Editor Celia Cortada and her able assistant Donald Dokas were devoured by roaches on Wednesday night in the Greyhound darkroom.

A letter alleged that unidentified thugs sealed Cortada and Dokas in the darkroom by constructing a steel brace over the door. The thugs then released hundreds of specially trained attack roaches under the door to devour Cortada and Dokas.

The only known roach farm in the world capable of producing such well-trained roaches exists in Westminster, MD. The owners of the roach farm run a military style camp in which the roaches are trained to detect and kill specific individuals.

According to the anonymous letter, Comrades Batman and Boy Wonder own 52 percent of the stock in the roach enterprise. They assure all that the stock is "purely an investment" and they "know nothing about the company's day-to-day operations."

She will be buried along with her freshman class election picture, her "Send a Wombat to Camp" campaign banner, her "Return of the Moose" book, and her favorite A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E official's statement, "I'm Smart and I'm an Alcoholic."

Peg Culotta, former Sports Editor of the Loyola Greyhound, has been given up for dead after a five day state-wide search.

Culotta was on her way to her grandmother's house, who had been ailing. Culotta carried a basket with chicken soup, homemade oatmeal cookies and whiskey, all to help her grandmother's nasty cold. But she never arrived. Her grandmother got worried when Culotta was late and called the police when it began to get dark.

After talking to several witnesses, police got a lead that the last one to see Culotta alive was the Big, Bad Wolf, a known felon and all-around mean guy.

Upon questioning, the wolf admitted to talking with Culotta in the woods, but denies any allegations connecting him with her disappearance. Further investigation turned up nothing substantial which could pin this rap on the Big, Bad Wolf.

Diana Meushaw, the business manager of the Greyhound, was crushed beneath the tire of a dump truck Monday, March 26 on the Ennis Parallel behind the construction site.

According to those who saw her last, Meushaw drank herself into a stupor Sunday night when she discovered that she had lost her keys.

Comrade Ray Parnell, the Director of Security, reconstructed the sequence of events. "Meushaw, distraught over the loss of her keys, became severely intoxicated in the Rat on Sunday evening between seven and ten p.m. She wandered out of the Rat onto the Ennis Parallel, and collapsed 200 feet short of Maryland Hall.

"When a dump truck arrived at the construction site the next morning, the driver apparently did not see Meushaw's body in the road," Comrade Parnell said. "The dump truck's left front tire totally crushed Meushaw's skull."

The comrade witness also caught a glimpse of the driver, whom no one has up until now been able to identify. "He was a smallish man, without a lot of hair. He looked more like an administrator than a truck driver," comrade witness said.

Colleen Lilly, assistant news deaditor, died slowly and painfully Wednesday March 29 from overabuse and a lack of attention. An unnamed A-S-L-C/S-G-A/M-O-U-S-E official abused Hallmen's peon into admitting

The much-loved and greatly respected advisor to the Greyhound, Andy Ciofalo and his daughter Terri, the assistant ad manager for the Greyhound, were both shot through the forehead while in New York during the spring break.

On Tuesday, March 20, the elder Ciofalo and his daughter made a trip to Wendy's for dinner. Ciofalo ambled up to the counter and jokingly remarked, "Where's the beef?"

At that instant a bushy-bearded man clad in combat fatigues leaped up from behind the counter, leveled a Magnum at Ciofalo's head, and replied in a Spanish accent, "All over the floor, imperialist swine!"

The bushy-bearded man, who some witnesses said strongly resembled our Cuban comrade and present Greyhound advisor Fidel Castro, then pulled the trigger of his Magnum. A split second later, he fired on Terri Ciofalo. Neither were able to place their orders.

Comrade Castro fled the Wendy's, hopped into a waiting jeep parked outside the fast food restaurant, and arrived at Loyola about four hours later. Reverend Comrade Josef Sellinger has granted Comrade Castro political asylum and the advisorship to the Greyhound.

Editorial page editor Liz Healy strangled herself with a telephone cord in The Greyhound office after she learned on Friday March 30 that she was the last surviving member of The Greyhound staff.

A handwritten note was found on the layout table in the features office which read, "I was determined to kill myself before they had the chance." No one is certain who "they" refers to.

Near the note, written in red magic marker on the features layout table was the curious note, "All mine, now its all mine," an apparent reference to Healy's feud with features editor Sue Winchurch over office space. Winchurch died earlier in the week.
